

Hill Realty's planned Hillsboro Village building: the images

Published December 14, 2012 by William Williams

Take a look at these images for the building H.G. Hill Realty is planning for Hillsboro Village. Designed by Manuel Zeitlin Architects (which crafted the images seen below) with a decidedly contemporary flair, the new building will replace an existing grouping of vintage masonry structures slated to be razed in early 2013.

This rendering shows a similar view, but with the building home to Bosco's visible on the far right.

This image shows the building with 21st on the right and Acklen Avenue on the left. From this perspective, the Bosco's building would be situated next to the lower right corner of the image.
