Revelator Coffee Company will open its Nashville location Monday in Hillsboro Village.

The new location, in a space in Hill Center Acklen facing 21st Avenue, will feature coffee, tea and food items. The company was founded in Birmingham and also has locations in Chattanooga, New Orleans and Atlanta with another location opening in Charleston, South Carolina, later this year.

"It's a great time for Nashville and the community in and around Hillsboro Village," Meredith Singer, Revelator Coffee Company's marketing director, said in a release. "We're a part of a very exciting development project, and we look forward to bringing the city another great coffee experience. Revelator adds to the mix with our seasonally driven menu and our bright, relaxed atmosphere. We take a culinary approach to coffee, practicing a multi-sensory experience that pushes coffee — and our customers' experience — toward pure delight."
